on as to make said section one (1) read as

As a climax to the evening's enjoyeral strong arms seized Mrs. John Barry, the hostess, and she was vaulted upon the steed's broad back. A shout of laughter greeted her elevation to that post of honor. As she was not arrayed in a riding habit, ankles and hose became conspicuous and the fair rider was mortified.

The horse was led about the room while the audience laughed loudly and applauded their hostess's discomfiture. Mrs. Barry's entreaties to be released fell on deaf ears for a long time. Then she grew so turious that she was permitted to dismount. Leveling her weapon at her now frightened tormentors, she fired. The bullet struck Constable Hart in the neck and he dropped. Then she opened up a volley upon her guests and a man whose name is yet unknown to the public, got a bullet in the leg. The guests fled from the house. Constable Hart's wound, Dr. William Doren says, may end fatally. A warrant was sworn out for Mrs. Barry's arrest.
